Alliance Board Member Scott Andrews Appointed to Portland Development Commission Board

Portland, Ore. – Today, Portland City Council appointed longtime civic leader Scott Andrews to the Portland Development Commission. Scott is currently president of Melvin Mark Properties and serves as a board member of Portland Business Alliance. He chaired the Alliance during its 2005-2006 year. Scott is also chair of the Regional Business Plan steering committee, president of Mall Management, Inc. and represents the Mall Management Group on the Mayor's Portland Mall Steering Committee.

"As chair of the Regional Business Plan steering committee for the last two years, Scott led the effort to bring together the Portland region's diverse government and business leadership to focus on a set of shared policy priorities," said Sandra McDonough, president and CEO of the Portland Business Alliance. "He is a strong, visionary leader who can relate to the needs of a neighborhood grocery store as well as a large global business, and his thoughtful approach to issues has earned the trust of leaders across the metropolitan area."

Scott's term on the commission begins immediately. He joins fellow Alliance board member Charles Wilhoite of Willamette Management Associates.
